OVERVIEW:

1. DAY 1: Choosing what to grow and starting your fall crops
2. DAY 2: Choosing where to grow your winter garden
3. DAY 3: Timing your winter garden - creating your planting calendar
4. DAY 4: Succession planting for a continual harvest
5. DAY 5: Protecting your winter garden & Q+A wrap-up

SILENCE DISTRACTIONS

THE #1 CRITICAL FACTOR FOR A SUCCESSFUL WINTER GARDEN

---

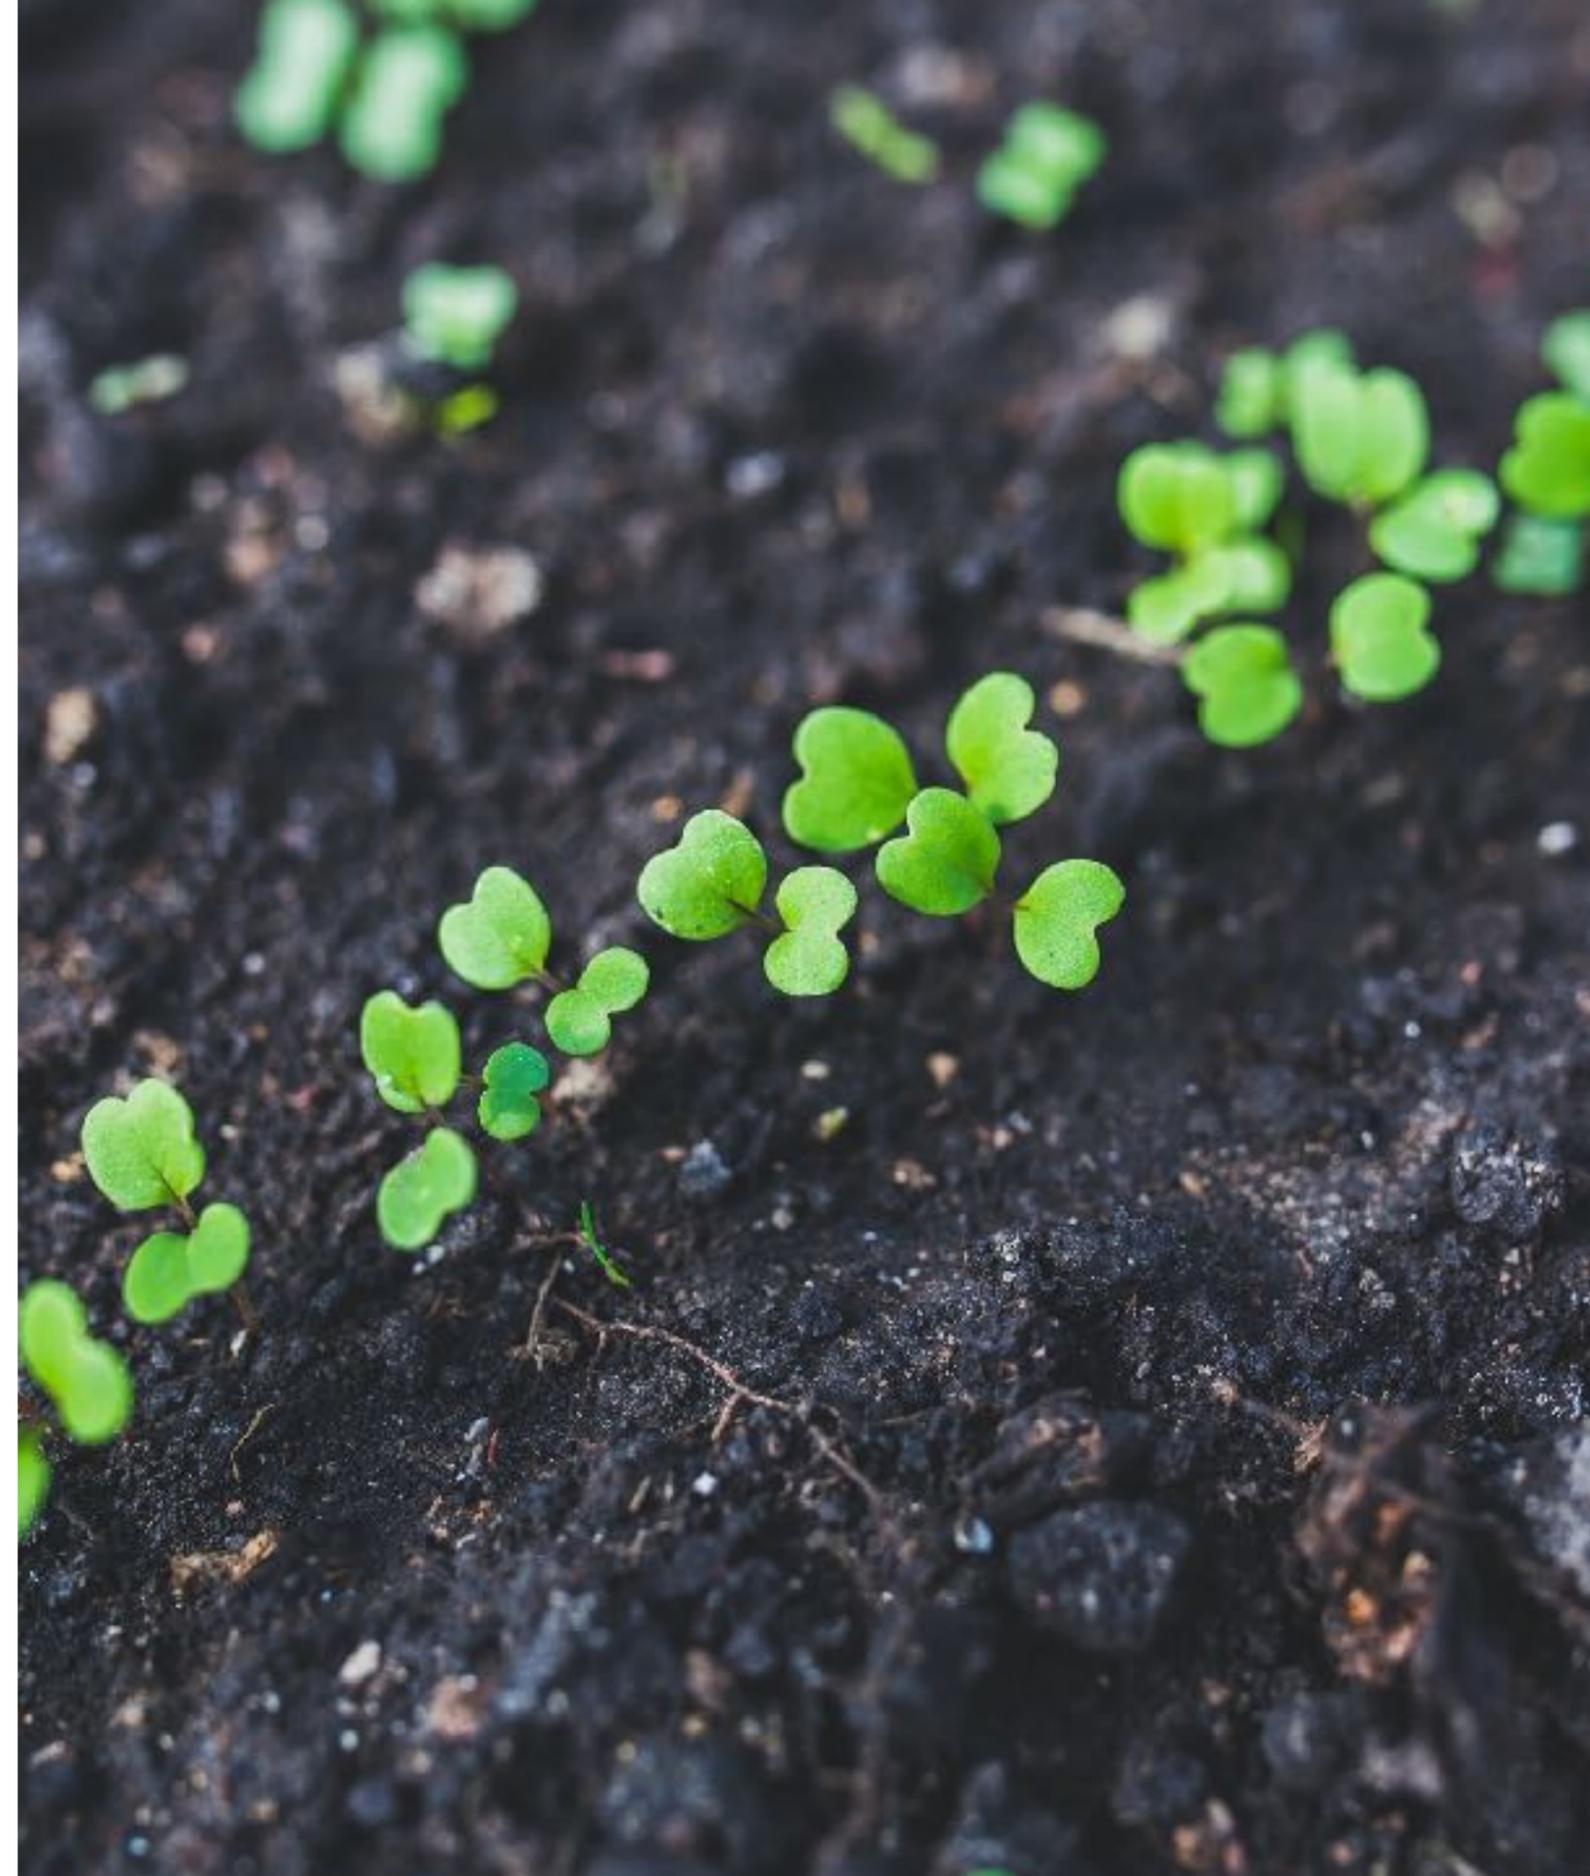

1. So, what is the single most critical factor for extending your season?
2. Great question and I think most of our minds would turn to heat or protection
3. T is for TIMING

T - TIMING

---

1. We want to protect our veggies from the cold and wind
2. That's all true, but before we get there – we need the veggies themselves to protect – and perhaps one of the easiest things to get wrong is timing

T - TIMING

---

1. The first critical factor when it comes to season extension is the timing of when you plant your veggies
2. Timing can make all the difference from having a harvest – to no harvest at all

T - TIMING

1. So, what happens is as the weather gets cooler and even more importantly as the day length decreases – plants growth also slows down and will eventually come to a stop
2. As a general rule, plant growth slows down the most when days become 10 hours or shorter

T - TIMING

---

- During this period in the winter your plants won't actually be growing and hence our purpose in season extension isn't so much to grow plants in the winter as it is to keep them alive through the winter
- The critical factor then is to know when to plant your plants during the summer or fall so that they will be mature by the time winter sets in

---

- Or if you are wanting early crops in the spring then you're simply dealing with the reverse (plants growth starts to speed up again like a bell curve) and you'll want to know when to plant them in the winter so that they will be at the right stage to harvest in the spring

PLANTING FOR A CONTINUAL HARVEST

Adapted from The New Organic Grower p. 260

---

1. Timing is perhaps the #1 thing that causes most winter gardens to fail
2. So, what if you do get your plants planted late? Can you save them?

T - TIMING

---

- Truth is, that the day length factor with your days getting shorter is a big factor when it comes to your plants growth slowing down – but heat does play its role as well

- Think of protection and warmth as a little buffer to encourage your plants to grow a little faster before the days get too short
- But definitely don't rely on heat to grow your veggies during the cold – it's much better and will save you time and energy to start your plants at the right time so that they will be mature as the winter sets in

OUR PERPETUAL HARVEST HACK

THE SIMPLE WAY

---

1. Gardening is full of decisions
2. The simple art of knowing:
  1. What to do (PLAN)
  2. How to do it (ACTION)
  3. And doing it at the right time (TIMING)
3. Power of the “Perpetual Harvest Hack”

WHAT TO DO (PLAN)

WHAT TO DO

1. The list of crops you are going to grow
2. Seeding, transplanting, cultivating, watering, trellising, harvesting
3. Succession or “leapfrog” planting

WHAT IS LEAPFROG PLANTING?

1. What is leapfrog planting?
2. Each time you harvest have another crop ready to plant
3. Example with lettuce
4. Example with peas and green beans

LEAPFROG PLANTING

1. But leapfrog planting can be complex too
  1. You've got to figure out when to plant your first crop
  2. Then how long before it will be harvested
  3. And how long of a harvest window you can expect from it
  4. And then when to plant the second "leapfrog" crop so that it is ready to go in when the first crop is harvested
  5. Plus figure out how long in the season the crop can be grown
  6. And then repeat that for each crop because they are all different

1. It really doesn't take that much more physical work.
2. Complicated? You bet it sure can be!
3. Unless you're using the "Perpetual Harvest Hack"!

HOW TO DO IT (ACTION)

HOW TO DO IT

1. How to seed your starts
2. How to transplant
3. How to cultivate
4. How to build healthy soil
5. How to trellis your plants
6. How to extend your season into the winter without breaking your pocketbook

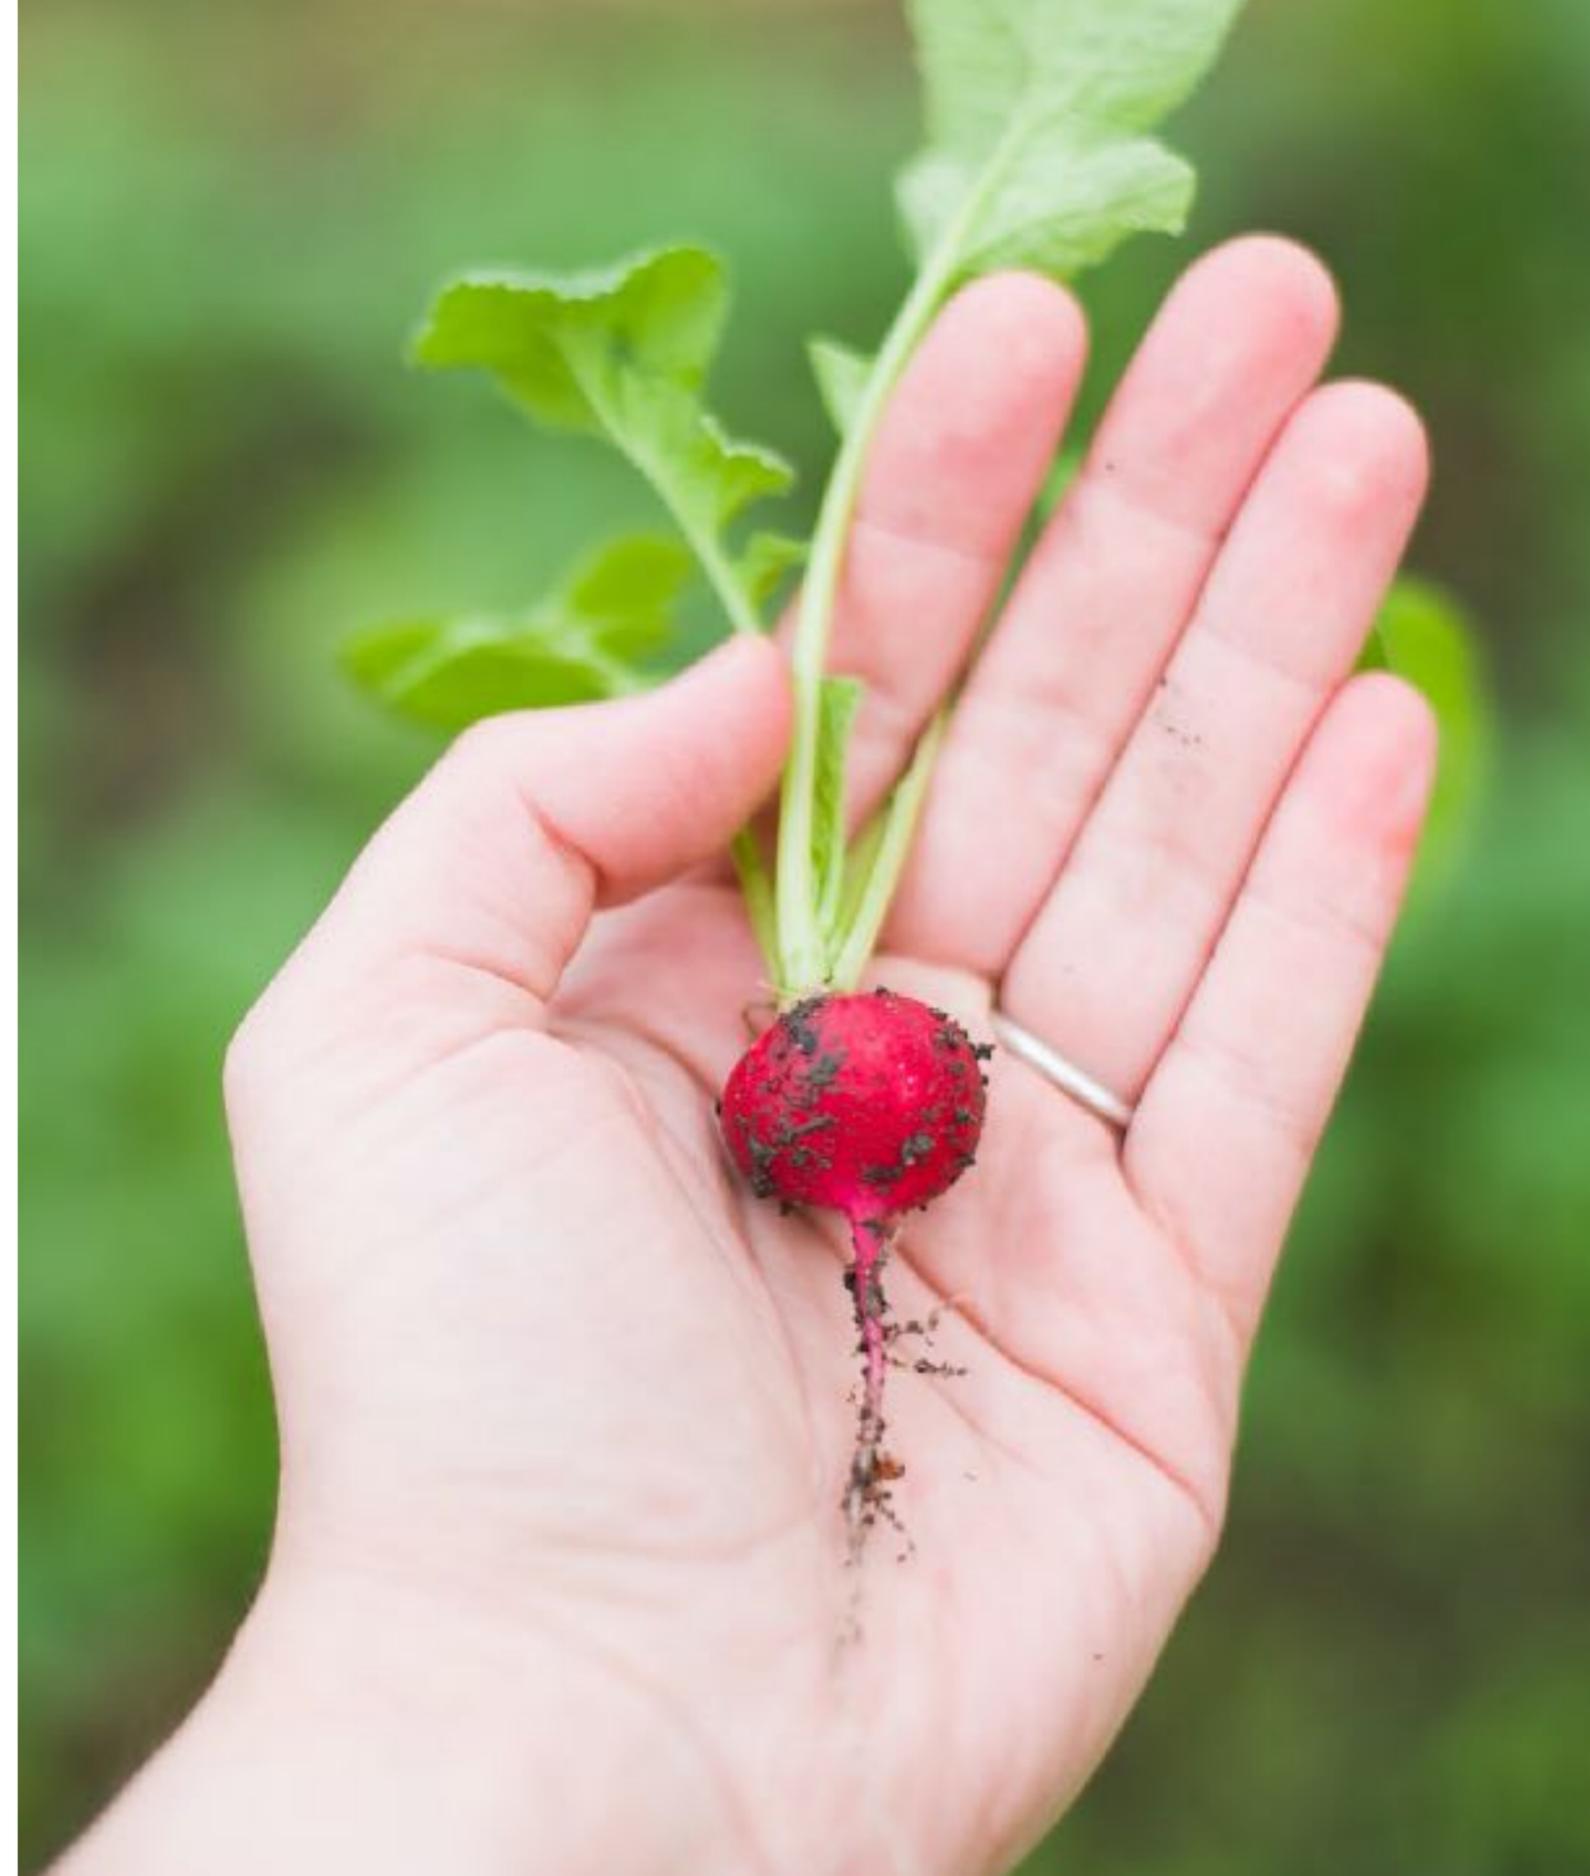

A close-up photograph of several green leaves with prominent veins, set against a dark background. A black rectangular box is overlaid at the bottom of the image, containing white text.

WHEN TO DO IT (TIMING)

WHEN TO DO IT

1. The timing of when to seed
2. When to seed succession plantings
3. When to transplant
4. When to harvest
5. Putting it all in a calendar
6. Weekly checklist for extreme clarity

HOW TO CREATE YOUR OWN PLANTING SCHEDULE IN JUST MINUTES

YOU COULD PULL TOGETHER YOUR OWN “PERPETUAL HARVEST HACK”

---

You'll need to:

1. Manually find your average first and last frost dates
2. Look up each crop to find the suggested time to seed it for your location
3. Manually enter all of the info into a calendar to keep track
4. Calculate out the days to maturity for each crop so you know about when your harvests will start
5. Then make all the calculations for your leapfrog plantings

YOU COULD PULL TOGETHER YOUR OWN “PERPETUAL HARVEST HACK”

---

You'll need to:

6. Get your calendar to sync with some kind of to-do list to help keep you on track
7. And then spend hours browsing through YouTube videos (or reading books) to find the best ways to do everything

Yes, doing it on your own is definitely an option - but if you're anything like me it just sounds like a lot of work and hassle

And it is - trust me

This is how we used to create our planting calendars! 😄

The good news is there is a better and way easier way

And when we first showed the early prototype version to our students - let's just say they went crazy...

I have been gardening since I was in my mid 20s. I'm now in my mid 60s. I started using the earliest version of Seed time when it first came out. My fall and winter garden last year was the best ever, because the guess work of when to plant was simplified and so easy. Can't wait to see how it will do again this fall and winter. My summer garden this year has been challenging because of extreme heat. I love all the videos, helpful links and knowing I can get answers to my questions when I need help. Seed time is absolutely the best and I love it! Wish it had been around 40 years ago. It gives beginning and experienced gardeners tools to have the most productive and successful gardens and harvests. Thank you so much!

I'm planning a much larger fall/winter garden than I have in the past, with a mix of protected and unprotected growing spaces. It's a lot of different seeding dates to sort out and manage, and Seedtime definitely made it easier to plan and stay on task, and be confident that I am planting things at the right time. I'm looking forward to using it to plan my next spring garden!

Paul Dysinger and Edwin Dysinger,

I want to say thank you. SEEDTIME has been such a huge help. Several times a year, my depression gets so bad that I am physically incapable of doing anything other than what is mandatory for survival, and SEEDTIME has help give me an easy to follow structure that has allowed me to include gardening in my "needed to survive" list without being so overwhelming that I just let everything either overgrow or die. This is an absolutely game changer in my life. I find myself wandering around my garden pruning, watering, weeding, and watching/appreciating on days that I cannot handle existing. It might not seem like a big thing, but some days, it's enough to just exist. Some times it's enough to just water a garden and talk to the birds and bugs. Without SEEDTIME it would all be too overwhelming and I would hide in my house instead of wandering in my garden.

I'm setting this so that comments are off because today is one of those days. But it's also a day where I know that if I keep quiet other people that are struggling will feel like they are alone, and they aren't.

Well, I have some good and bad news

The bad news is that Seedtime is not currently open to the public right now

The good news, is that you are personally invited to get an early access account

Seedtime is currently still in very early stages of development. We've come a long way already and as you can see we've got a lot planned for the future

And here's the thing, from the beginning Seedtime has been built by the gardening community

We actually launched the first prototype version of Seedtime in connection with a Kickstarter crowdfunding campaign...

... that was funded in 10 minutes and continued on to become the second most funded app on Kickstarter at the time of the launch

What could you do with Seedtime?

What if it took the guess work out of extending your season into the winter or even earlier in the spring - giving you extra fall and winter
harvests?

Or what if it took away the hassle of planning succession plantings and helped you stay organized giving you a ton more confidence in managing your whole garden without anxiety?

What if the weekly checklist helped you seed just one or two new crops each week?

Consistently adding a steady flow to your garden.

How much do you think you could grow in a year?

How much could you potentially save?

When we used our prototype for Seedtime we grew six tomato plants that produced over 100 lbs of tomatoes.

That's about $300 worth!

What if you just grew six tomato plants and got that kind of a harvest?

Or, what if you doubled it and grew 12 tomato plants and then added some squash and cucumbers?
Plus a little fall garden?

Fast forward a full year and how much of your grocery bill could you replace from your garden?

$300?

$500?

$1000?

And what if it saved you hours of time like Kirial?

Kirial [redacted]
Scheduling

Pro: Easy to adjust the schedule on the fly thanks to the drag-and-drop; way better than having to go in and edit dates manually on 40+ entries to see them reflected in the charts/calendars on excel. It doesn't seem like much, but when you add it all up that has saved me actual hours (about 32) over the season so far.

Deann [redacted] 19 hours ago

I backed seedtime because I want to extend my harvest seasons, thus increasing g my yields. First off,I entered my typically planted crops. And I found...

I will need to take this one step at a time. There is obviously SO much more I could be doing! I could be harvesting a bounty of fresh produce right now! So much information to digest, but this is EXACTLY what I needed to boldly illustrate & guide what I could be doing.

Within the first hour of the first day of use I say BRAVO. Now I need to get moving as there are many things I could be doing in relation to my garden, even on a cold, rainy day like today.

Thank you!

Just a little curious poll for our original Kickstarter backers 😊

I'd love to get a little pulse on how we're coming along here! So question is this - what do you think of our progress so far and where Seedtime is now compared to what you expected when you first pledged on the Kickstarter?

Asking specifically about development wise. We all wish it was happening faster - LOL! 😄

Feel free to leave any additional thoughts in the comments below. We're constantly trying to ...
